A Prenuptial Agreement, (a “Prenup”), is a document that outlines the division of property, assets, and other possessions in the event of a divorce. While many people associate Prenups with the very wealthy, anyone who has assets or property to protect should consider this document.

When Should You Consider a Prenuptial Agreement?

- You are getting married.
- You have children from a previous marriage.
- You have significant assets or property.
- You are marrying someone with significant assets or property.

If you are in any of these situations, a Prenuptial Agreement may be beneficial. A Prenuptial Agreement can protect your assets and property in the event of a divorce.

Benefits of a Prenuptial Agreement: A Prenuptial Agreement can provide many benefits. A prenuptial agreement can help:

- Protect your assets.
- Prevent financial situations from becoming contentious during a divorce.
- Ensure that your property is divided fairly in the event of a divorce.
